■ THE FACULTY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

Cyber security is need of the time. As estimated by National Association of Software and Services Companies (NASSCOM)'s Cyber Security Task Force, there is need of 1 million trained cyber security professionals in India by 2025. But, currently there are only 62,000. So, to fill this gap, there is need to introduce cyber security courses at graduate and postgraduate levels. Our aim is to train teachers with practical skills so that more and more cyber security experts can be shaped every year. It is expected that the 'Train the Trainers' approach shall percolate to the students in colleges and make them suitable to take up challenges in the domain of Cyber Security which is the need of this decade and will thus improve their employability enhancing campus placement. In addition, Cyber Security courses will help in start-ups and employment opportunities. The faculty shall also be trained specifically as knowledge creator with strong practical 'skills' and theoretical details.
