Department of Geography,
PROF. SAMBAJIRAO KADAM COLLEGE, DEUR

Background of the Seminar

Agriculture remains the backbone of India's economy, supporting nearly half of the country's workforce and ensuring food security for its growing population. However, conventional farming practices have led to critical environmental, economic, and social challenges, including soil degradation, water scarcity, climate change vulnerability, declining biodiversity, and financial distress among farmers. Sustainable agriculture offers a viable solution by promoting eco-friendly farming techniques, resource efficiency, and economic resilience.

This seminar explores the concept of sustainable agriculture, its importance, and the pressing challenges faced in its implementation in India. Key issues such as excessive use of chemical inputs, unsustainable water management, lack of awareness, policy constraints, and the impact of climate change will be examined. The discussion will also highlight various sustainable agricultural practices, including organic farming, crop diversification, agroforestry, precision farming, and conservation agriculture.

Furthermore, the seminar will delve into government initiatives and policy interventions aimed at promoting sustainability in Indian agriculture, such as the National Mission for Sustainable Agriculture (NMSA), Soil Health Card Scheme, and Pradhan Mantri Krishi Sinchayee Yojana (PMKSY). It will also focus on the role of technology, market linkages, and farmer education in ensuring the successful adoption of sustainable practices.

The seminar aims to provide a comprehensive understanding of the opportunities and challenges in achieving sustainable agriculture in India and will offer insights into potential solutions for a more resilient and productive agricultural sector. By fostering dialogue among researchers, policymakers, farmers, and stakeholders, this discussion seeks to pave the way for a sustainable agricultural future that balances food security, environmental protection, and economic prosperity. This seminar will definitely together the geographers, environmentalist, geologist, sociologist, planners, policy makers and economist on a common platform. The seminar will focus on following sub-themes.

Themes

- Sustainable Development Assessment : Indices, Techniques and Application
- Sustainable Development Goals and Policies and Changing concepts of Development

- Application of RS and GIS for sustainable development
- Urbanization, Industrialization and Environmental Issues
- Land use Projection Modeling and Regional Analysis
